Bold budget

GIVE Mr Selwyn Lloyd his due: there is nothing chicken-hearted about him when it comes to stating his party's economic convictions. His first budget is unashamedly Conservative in character, perhaps more so than any since the war. He has been honest enough to admit that the most perilously taxed people are not those in the middle or lower income levels but in the executive and professional class who have been unjustly squeezed by successive Labour and Conservative Governments out of the fair rewards for their ability, initiative, enterprise and responsibility.

But the Chancellor has made this relief possible in a rather clever way. He will pay for it by taking a larger slice of company profits; this may mean slightly less for shareholders but if it does it will also mean that those who have done the most to ensure the success of their business will receive a fairer share of the rewards. For the majority of the population, income and purchase tax rates remain unchanged, but then they were eased only two years ago.

THE most notable features of the budget, however, are the two flexible controls that the Chancellor has given himself to iron out the occasional economic kinks which develop in the course of the year, as well as to pep up productivity. Thus if inflation should assert itself in a rather alarming way in July or August, Mr Lloyd will not have to wait until next April before he takes the necessary remedial measures. Nor, now, will he have only the weapon of Bank Rate to deal with these periodic crises.

The second measure he has adopted is the controversial surcharge on employees which is aimed at discouraging the tendency to over-staff, and encouraging automation. Mr Selwyn Lloyd's anxiety to speed up the modernisation of industry and to kick it into better shape to face foreign competition is praiseworthy but the unions are suspicious of the threat this measure poses to full employment and firms that are big users of labour are grumbling. If this tax does no more than force up costs and exacerbate labour troubles, it would be better to cast around for a less damaging stimulant.

THE budget, however, is a bold one and a very creditable first effort for Mr Selwyn Lloyd who is clearly determined not to be caught flat-footed by the swing of the economic pendulum during the year. It may well be that with these powers he will not only discourage emergencies before they arise but in the long run bring about a healthier attitude to spending and a gradual reduction of production costs. This in turn may lead to a much-needed improvement in output and exports.

Mr Gaitskell, leader of the Opposition, and the Liberal Party disagree with this thesis but it is one that nevertheless deserves to be tried. Much will of course depend on Mr Selwyn Lloyd's sense of timing and the care with which he uses his new powers and the only hope is that if the payroll tax backfires in a series of bitter and protracted labour disputes, he will be courageous enough to approach the problem next year from a different tack.

China Fir hits rocky island in Tat Hong Channel HK SHIP AGROUND OFF LYEMUN

Crew rescued in late night drama

The 10,000-ton Hongkong registered freighter, ss China Fir, went aground on the rocky island of Ngai Ying Pai near Lam Tong Island in Tat Hong Channel about six miles off Lyemun Pass, last night.

Shortly after 10 pm, the wind was strong, the sky was dark and the tide was rising when the crew aboard the Japan-bound China Fir heard "the ship groaning and vibrating after running on to rocks."

Pilot blamed for Arcadia grounding

Honolulu, Apr. 19.—A veteran harbour pilot blamed for the January 5 grounding of the British luxury liner Arcadia in Honolulu harbour has been suspended for two months.

Pilot August Hagedorn, 64, surrendered his licence on Tuesday to the Coast Guard. The suspension notice was forwarded here from James Donahue, Seattle, Washington U.S. Civil Service examiner who presided at hearings in Honolulu.

The grounding of the P and O-Orient liner was blamed on hull girls and company officials boarding the ship just outside port, distracting Hasselgren and the Arcadia's master, Capt. W. T. C. Leitchbridge. There was no serious damage to the 30,000-ton ship.—AP.

Essex train crash kills two

London, Apr. 18.—Three people were tonight known to have died and 43 were injured when a train left the rails at Basildon, Essex, today.

Firemen and other rescue workers are still searching among the wreckage of three telescoped coaches.

The crash came as the train was passing a set of points. The engine and the first three of the nine coaches hurtled into the embankment along one side of the track.

Rescuers, hampered by steep slopes, formed a human chain to hand the injured on stretchers to a waiting convoy of ambulances.

The train was travelling from Fenchurch-street, London, to the Thames Estuary town of Shoeburyness, Essex.

It was the second major crash on the line. In January, 1958, a train crashed into the back of another, killing 10 people.—Reuter.

SILVER COINS SEIZED ON CHANGTE

Hongkong, Apr. 19.—Customs yesterday seized £850 worth of silver coins hidden in an oil tank in the engineroom of the cargo-passenger ship Changte when it docked here.

The silver was stacked in 20 leather bags belonging to steward Chu Yien-sen, 40.

The ship was returning today to Hongkong.

The Customs said that Chu would probably receive a bank draft for the money when he reaches Hongkong.

Under exchange regulations travellers are not allowed to leave Australia with more than £25 in London currency.—London Express Service.

Maudling predicts big tariff reduction

London, Apr. 18.—Mr Reginald Maudling, President of the Board of Trade, said today that he hoped to be able to make a "really big move" in the reduction of tariffs.

Speaking in the House of Commons in a debate on yesterday's Budget, he said that one way to get greater efficiency in industry was more competition, including more competition from imports.

He went on:

"I believe we must, in the coming months, during the GATT negotiations which will soon start, aim at really substantial reductions in our tariff rates over a very wide range of industrial products."

This should not be done on a unilateral basis, but in exchange for new opportunities for British exports by reciprocal tariff reductions by other countries.

A Tallow Dockyard tug and a police launch are still standing by the vessel whose bow was reported to be completely under water leaving only the stern and the tip of the funnel above the surface.

Iron ore

Mr H. M. J. Bent, Marine Superintendent of the Fir Line Ltd, owner of the ship, told China Mail this morning that the China Fir was carrying 1,800 long tons of iron ore from Mormugao in Portuguese India to Japan via Singapore and Hongkong.

She was built by the William Pickersgill yard, Sunderland, in 1937.

Ko, the engine room man, said that the China Fir arrived in Hongkong on Monday. The ship cleared port at 045 pm yesterday and steamed out of Lyemun Pass.

There were four Europeans among the crew. They were the captain, the chief officer, chief engineer, and the second engineer.

Mr Bent added that "as far as we are concerned, the ship is still there waiting for expert advice on what to do with salvaging."

The Royal Observatory said the weather conditions in that area were generally not good. The weather station on Weigao Island recorded easterly winds of 22 to 25 knots, a visibility of 2.5 nautical miles with low cloud at 500 feet last night.

There was intermittent slight rain, the sky was overcast and the tide was rising, the weather station spokesman said.

Prisoner escapes

At about 10.15 am today in Old Bailey-street, a prisoner, sentenced to 12 months' imprisonment for possession of dangerous drugs, escaped from custody while being escorted from Victoria Prison to a Prison Department van for transfer to Stanley.

The police were called in and a hunt for the escaped prisoner is now in progress.—AP.

Kennedy warns Soviet Premier against intervention in Cuba

Washington, Apr. 18.—President Kennedy told Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev today that the United States will meet any intervention by outside force in Cuba.

Mr Kennedy, in a reply to Mr Khrushchev's blunt note earlier today on the Cuban invasion by anti-Castro forces, said he hoped that Russia would not use the situation in Cuba as a pretext "to inflame other areas of the world."

Mr Kennedy said it should be no surprise that refugees from that Castro-dominated nation off the U.S. have been using whatever means are available to return and "support their countrymen in their continuing struggle for freedom."

The President added: "Where people are denied the right of choice, recourse to such struggle is the only means of achieving their liberties."

Mr Kennedy repeated his declaration of last week that Americans would not be involved in any military intervention in Cuba.

With that statement, Mr Kennedy rejected Mr Khrushchev's charge that the United States was supporting the invasion by Cuban forces seeking to overthrow Dr Castro.

The text

In his message, Mr Khrushchev also threatened to give the Castro regime "all necessary assistance" in resisting the invasion.

Following is the text of a message from President Kennedy to Mr Khrushchev:

"Mr Chairman: You are under a serious misapprehension in regards to events in Cuba."

"For months there has been evident and growing resistance to the Castro dictatorship. More than 100,000 refugees have recently fled from Cuba into neighbouring countries. Their urgent hope is naturally to assist their fellow Cubans in their struggle for freedom."

The planes were described as Migs. Other Soviet and Czech equipment has been pouring into Cuba since Castro began lining up with the Communist bloc.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev backing up Castro with an offer of help, charged the United States with backing the invaders.

He sent President Kennedy a personal message demanding the President halt the invasion.

CUT OFF

American correspondents in Havana were cut from the outside world by a government communications blackout. But Cuban diplomats in Communist countries pictured Castro's forces as winning.

The Cuban Charge D'Affaires in Prague, Mr Enzo Roa Jr., estimated the invaders at 2,000 men and said two battalions of Cuban troops, supported by four tanks, were battling the rebels.

More than 36 hours after the invasion on Cuba's swampy south coast in central Las Villas Province, the rebel force had not reported the seizure of any important objectives.

Little news came on any of the other landings reported by Cuban exiles on the eastern and western ends of Cuba and the Isle of Pines.

There was a growing fear in Miami that the rebels may have struck too soon, exposing an undermanned movement to Prime Minister Castro's military forces, which are estimated at 400,000 men counting the civilian militia.

GAMBLE

A rebel spokesman in the United States claimed the invasion spearhead on the south coast had moved inland to the area of Colon, a city in Matanzas Province halfway across the narrow island of the main road 90 miles east of Havana.

The invasion troops allegedly estimated from only a few hundred to 5,000 men, gambled that the Cuban people would rally around them in a popular uprising to topple Castro's Communist-backed government. They banked on large-scale defections from Castro's militia.

The Revolutionary Council asserted large-scale defections had taken place, but there was no supporting evidence of this.—AP.

Careful note

"I have taken careful note of your statement that the events in Cuba might affect peace in all parts of the world. I trust this does not mean that the Soviet Government, using the situation in Cuba as a pretext, is planning to inflame other areas of the world. I would like to think that your Government has too great a sense of responsibility to embark upon an

Seven die in plane crash

Fallon, Nev., Apr. 18.—At least seven men were killed and 12 injured today in the takeoff crash of a U.S. Navy R4D transport plane at the Fallon naval air auxiliary station.

Lieut. Cmdr. John Jacobsen said the two-engined aircraft was no more than 10 feet off the runway when it nosed down and burst into flames at the base in this western U.S. state.

Some survivors fled from the fiery wreckage. A crash truck team rescued others.

Cmdr. Jacobsen said the plane was flying to Alameda, California US naval air station after an overnight stop en route from Grosse Ile Field, near Detroit, Michigan. The plane had dropped off members of a Navy squadron at Fallon. It was returning to Alameda with a crew of four and at least 15 passengers.

However, Cmdr. Jacobsen said, "I believe, Mr Chairman, that you should recognise that free people in all parts of the world do not accept the claim of historical inevitability in resisting the invasion."

Following is the text of a message from President Kennedy to Mr Khrushchev:

"Mr Chairman: You are under a serious misapprehension in regards to events in Cuba."

"For months there has been evident and growing resistance to the Castro dictatorship. More than 100,000 refugees have recently fled from Cuba into neighbouring countries. Their urgent hope is naturally to assist their fellow Cubans in their struggle for freedom."

Soviet Premier Khrushchev backing up Castro with an offer of help, charged the United States with backing the invaders.

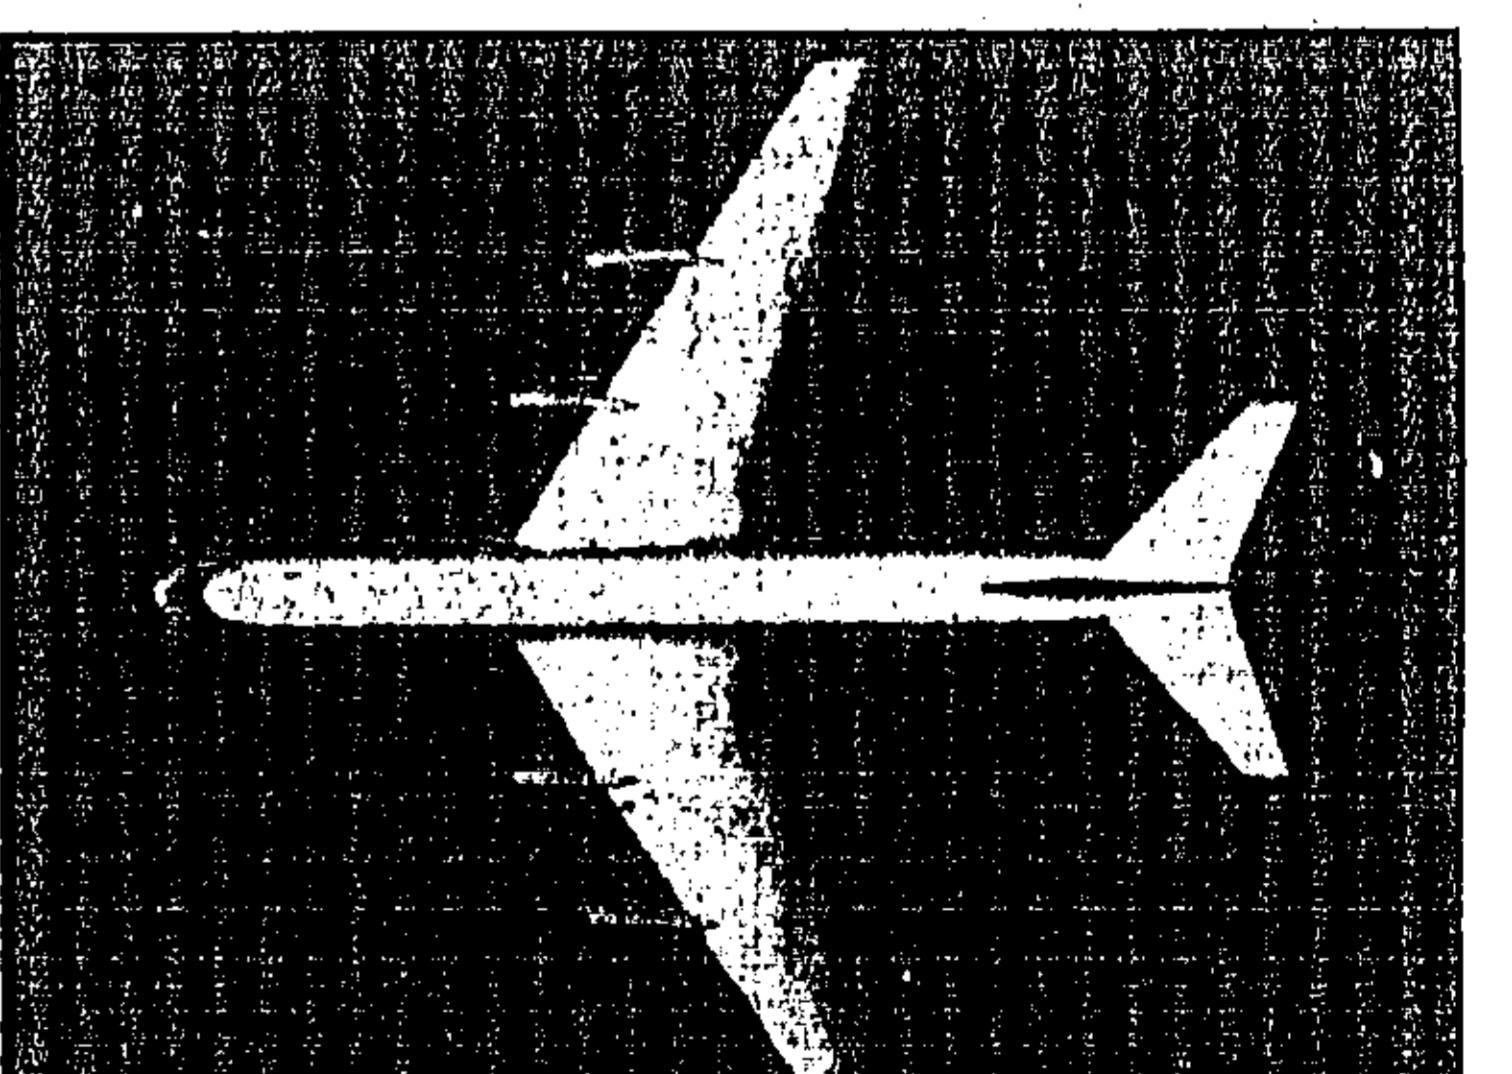

He sent President Kennedy a personal message demanding the President halt the invasion.

"I have previously stated, and I repeat now that the United States intends no military intervention in Cuba. In the event of any military intervention by outside force we will immediately honour our obligations under the Inter-American system to protect this hemisphere against external aggression. While refraining from military intervention in Cuba, the people of the United States do not conceal their admiration for Cuban patriots who wish to see a democratic system in an independent Cuba. The United States Government can take no action to assist the spirit of liberty."

"There was a mixup in the passenger manifest and we are searching the wreckage for more bodies."—AP.

Horrors revealed in Eichmann trial SO BRUTAL EVEN HIMMLER REPRIMANDED HIM

DETAILS OF HOW MILLIONS WERE MURDERED

Jerusalem, Apr. 18. Horror piled on horror in Adolf Eichmann's trial today as the prosecutor told the story of Hitler's "death camps." With drawn face and eyes cast down, Eichmann, 55, sat almost motionless as Mr Gideon Hausner, Israel's Attorney-General, gave stomach-turning details of how Jews and others were murdered by the million.

The names of the notorious death camps like Auschwitz, where 2,500,000 people were "exterminated" and 500,000 more died of disease, hunger and torture, and Treblinka, of Majdanek and Chechnino, where millions more died, brought back excruciating memories for Jews in the court, many of whom were personally involved in Hitler's hate campaign.

The mild-mannered, offensive-looking Eichmann was the man the prosecution said who initiated, planned, organised and executed the extermination of the Jews.

Death march

He went so far once in his treatment of the Jews that even Gestapo chief Heinrich Himmler, arch-enemy of the Jewish, reprimanded him, Mr Hausner said.

This was when Eichmann organised the notorious "death march" by Hungarian Jews in the Autumn of 1944.

Jews in court wiped tears from their eyes as Mr Hausner told how the former SS officer organised the march as the grand finale of his murder campaign.

Thousands of Jews were forced to march, ostensibly to camp in Austria, "but in fact with the sole motive of murder," the Attorney-General declared.

People died like flies along the route, and corpses littered the roadside for miles.

"Such was the horror of it that even Hungarian guards mutinied and refused to accompany the marchers."

Then an "astonishing thing" happened, Mr Hausner said.

Eichmann was reprimanded by Himmler himself for organising this dreadful operation.

By this time the Soviet armies had surrounded Budapest and the Jews in the city were saved.

Slaughterhouse

The gruesome story of life in the concentration camps was told by the prosecutor in his first address which, spread over two days, lasted a total of nine hours and 35 minutes.

Eichmann directed operations at Auschwitz, Poland "the death factory for millions which will always be remembered in the annals of humanity, as the symbol of horror and infamy." He had complete control over the Jews sent there, Mr Hausner said.

The camp was set up in the swamps and sand dunes west of Cracow "with the sure knowledge that it was to be a slaughterhouse."

Sometimes Jews were taken to the camp's giant extermination chambers. At other times those capable of work were put to work as slave labourers in factories.

"Labour promised life, so people tried to appear healthy ... to swell on a lean breast ... to act as though there was nothing wrong with them," the prosecutor declared.

"Ostensibly Doctor Mengele (the SS camp doctor still being sought by Western German authorities) would point his finger to the left during the selection parade. To the left meant death."

Killings in Auschwitz were carried out by every method: In the gas chambers and by shooting, hanging and beating, the prosecutor said.

In each gas chamber 2,000 people were herded together for a "shower"—of poison gas—and the job was done in 23 minutes.

"The death factory operated unceasingly," Mr Hausner said.

Experiments

Medical experiments were made on human beings at Auschwitz, if they were guinea pigs.

"Parts of female sex organs were cut out, or limbs were subjected to X-rays until the unfortunate creatures writhed in pain prior to their death," Mr Hausner said.

"Men were castrated, experiments were made on the influence of paraffin and petrol injections on human skin and the effects of chemical substances on mental resistance."

VERWOERD ALERTS FORCES

Opposition leader detained

Colombo, Apr. 18. Ceylon's main opposition party leader, Mr S. J. V. Chelvanayakam, was detained today under an order issued following last night's declaration of a state of emergency.

An official statement said detention orders had been issued for 68 people, of whom 45 had been detained.

Mr Hauser said the methods of punishment at Auschwitz "would not have shamed the most cruel barbarians in history." Water was poured into people's ears, finger nails extracted and prisoners starved until they went out of their minds.

Whips

One prisoner being punished by starvation died as he lay at the liver of a dead fellow-prisoner.

The Nazi contribution to European culture was the re-introduction of cannibalism," Mr Hauser declared.

And there were other places like Auschwitz.

A Cheapside, Poland, only four miles out of the 340,000 human beings perished.

Mr Hauser mentioned the escape of two of them, but did not say whether they would give evidence. They were over 600,000 Jews were murdered.

Mr Hauser told how SS guards with lashing whips herded naked men and women into a gas chamber inscribed "washing" and "inhalation equipment."

A smiling SS man told the lines of Jews: "no harm will befall you, simply breathe in deep... it is good for your lungs."

Kindness

At Majdanek, another Polish camp, at least 200,000 Jews were destroyed, and on one occasion 18,000 were shot in a single day.

But once at Majdanek children were treated with kindness—each was handed a sweet at the entrance to the gas chambers.

The camp at Treblinka, near Warsaw, was disguised to make it look like a transit point with a fake station and signals.

There the Jews were shot in the neck as they left a building marked "hospital" and fitted with upholstered couches, one named here had a dog trained to bite people at the word "Jude" (Jew).

Mr Hauser said there was a "planned maintenance of a way of life that was designed to kill" at the camp at Dachau and Bergen-Belsen, Germany, and Mauthausen, Austria.

The sick and dying were made to lie in the snow during parades.

Prisoners paraded for "selection" had to run, and those who stumbled were killed.

Mothers were lashed away from their children with whips, "one mother refused to be parted from her baby and an SS man snatched it from her and smashed the child's head on the ground," the prosecutor declared.

"He handed the child to the mother and said: 'now take your child,'" Reuter.

Big pools winners

London, Apr. 18. The 14 members of a London syndicate learned today they had won a total of £80,000 on a treble chance football pool.

None of the winners, who include a fishmonger, a tailor, a window-cleaner and shop assistants, stated more than five shillings on the winning permutation.

The syndicate, headed by Mr Frederick Fleeth, London bookshop manager, was formed two years ago, and its biggest previous win was £100.

Among several other big winners on the pools this week were a mother of six, a London green grocer, and a 20-year-old printer's assistant.

They each won £20,787 on another football pool, Reuter.

Uprisings expected next month

Johannesburg, Apr. 18. The South African police on Tuesday announced the arrest of a group of Africans suspected of breaking into armories and stealing scores of guns they might want to use in a revolt against this country's white government.

There have been widespread reports of guns from cadet schools so Minister of Defence, J. J. Fouche, ordered extra precautions.

The proclamation declared a 24-hour curfew in the Tamil-speaking northern and eastern provinces and imposed press censorship.

The Federal Party has been waging a civil disobedience campaign in these areas for the past two months demanding the use of Tamil as the official language instead of Sinhalese.

Today's statement said that troops had cleared all roads and entrances to public buildings which had been picketed in the northern and eastern provinces.

It said the "operation" was carefully conducted and it did not become necessary to use any such firearms, Reuter.

Israeli colonel denies spy charges

Tel Aviv, Apr. 18. Israel Beer, former General Staff Officer accused of espionage for the Communist bloc, reportedly denied the charges today.

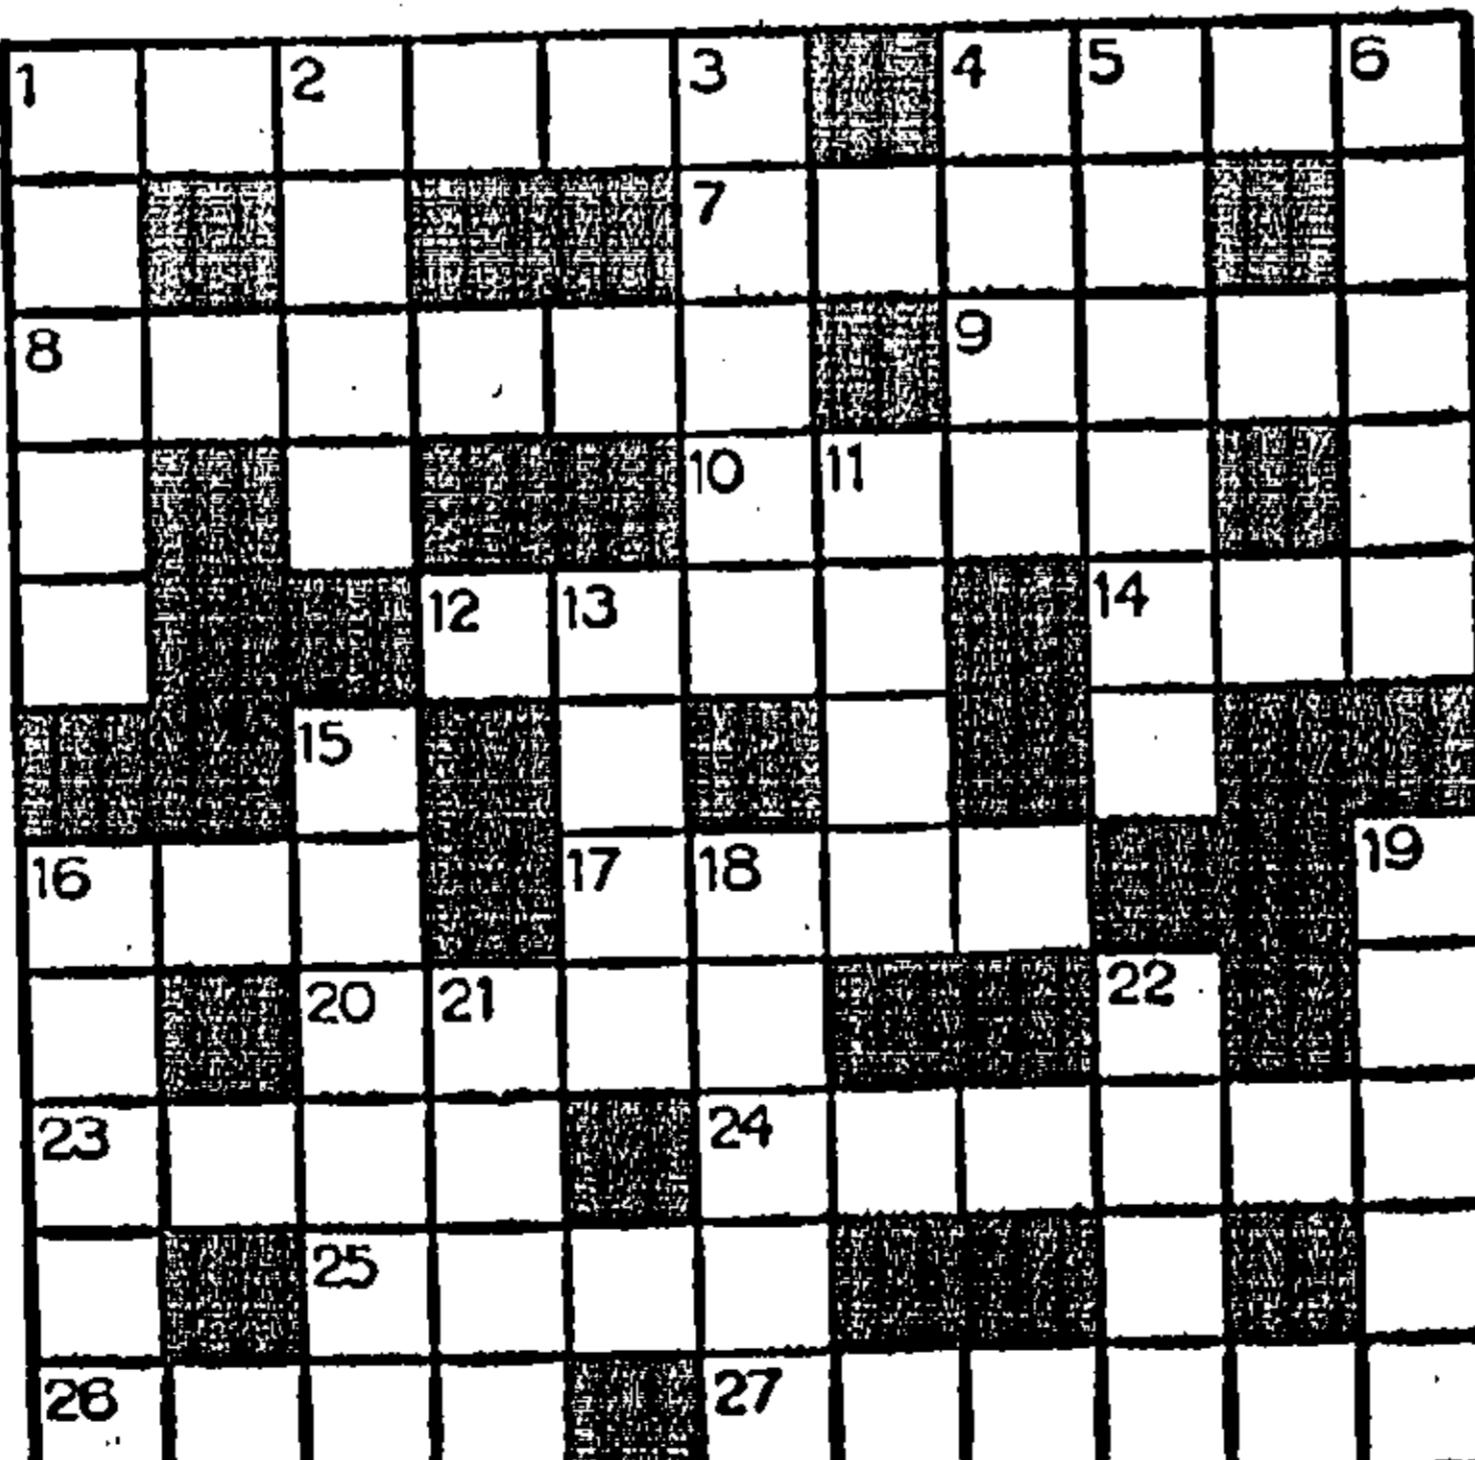

Bear, arrested on March 31, was reported earlier to have confessed that he gave a Communist diplomat military information out of "ideological" conviction.

But a reliable informant said Bear today told his lawyer, Dr Jacob Hagler:

"I have not committed any treason against Israel and I have always been loyal to our state."

Bear took a leading part in Israel's military planning until 1956. Since then he had been a military historian, AP.

Kenyatta to be allowed to return home

London, Apr. 18. The Colonial Office said tonight Governor Sir Patrick Renison of Kenya has ruled that Jomo Kenyatta may return to his home district of Kiambu in the near future.

In return, the statement added, the Kenya African Democratic Union has agreed to participate in the formation of a new Kenya Government.

Kenyatta, now 71, has been in jail or under arrest for the past eight years on charges arising from the activities of the dreaded Mau Mau movement.

Jacob Potofsky, President of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, told Kennedy in a telegram made public by the White House, that his union had called off the boycott threatened for May 1.

Kennedy previously had expressed concern about the proposed boycott. Both the US textile industry and labour representatives are studying the effects of imports on their operations.

A White House committee also is examining problems created by imports.

GRATIFIED

Lisbon, Apr. 18. Several plane loads of paratroops left here today for Portugal's West African territory of Angola.

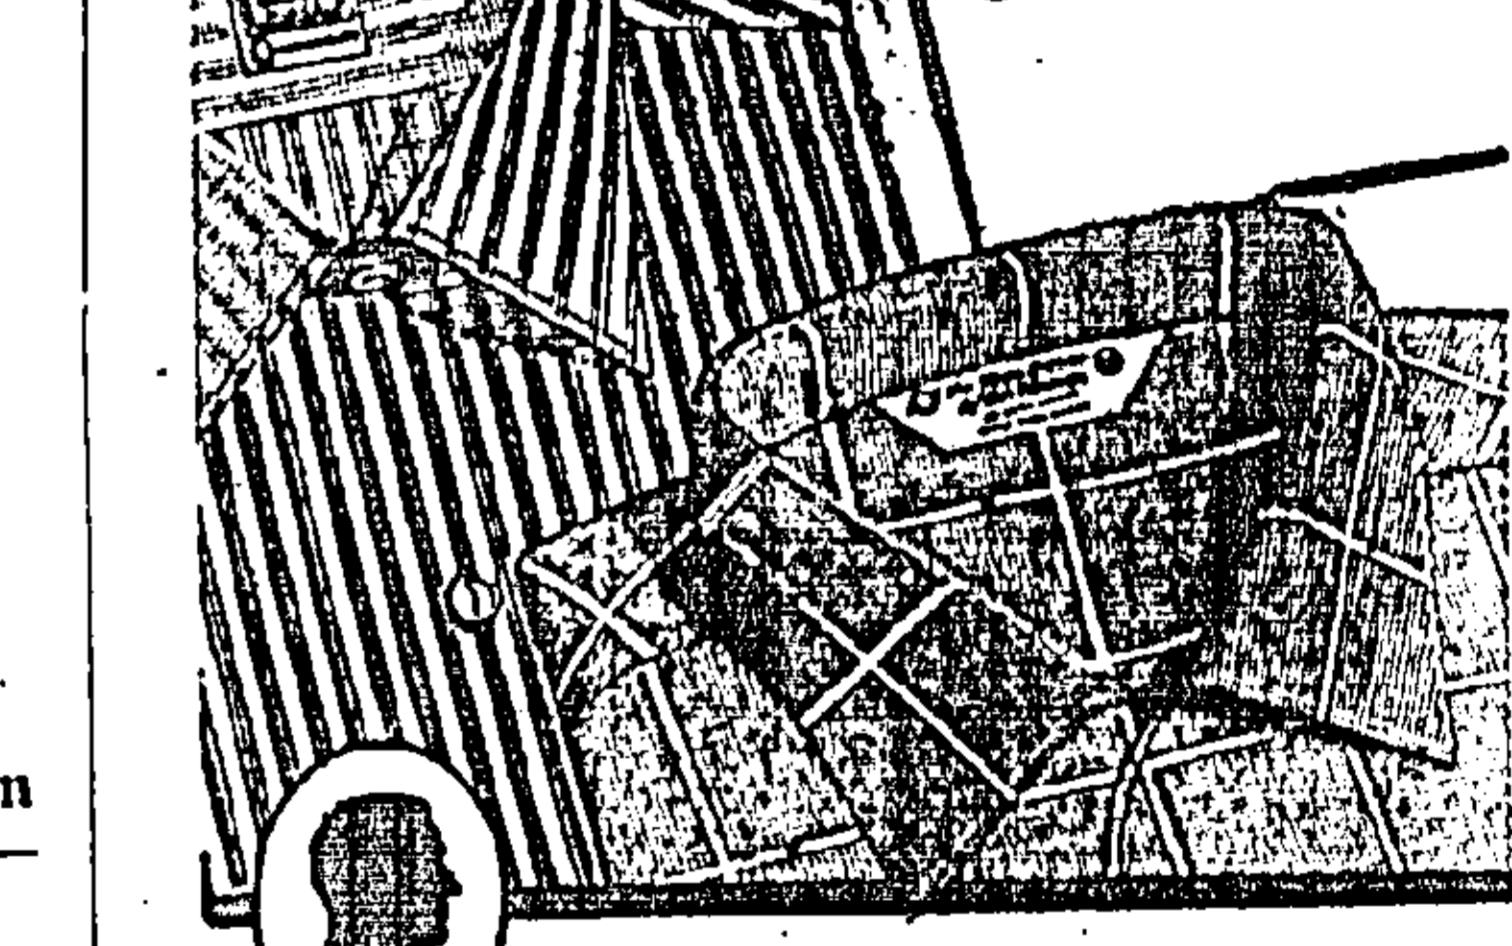

More planes with paratroops are due to leave tonight, while two ships are being loaded with arms and equipment for shipment to Angola.

In Luanda, the Angolan capital, it was learned today that five Europeans and two half-castes were killed yesterday in a terrorist raid on the northern village of Lucanga.

Munday night, a "general alert" was sounded at national defence headquarters in Pretoria. It was apparently planned to handle the anticipated May emergency, AP.

THE FAT WOMEN OF SICILY — A SALTY STORY

Messina, Apr. 18.
The ferryboat of fat women plies its daily way across the Strait of Messina from Sicily to the Italian Mainland.

And thereby hangs a salt tale
Stellino loves to tell.

For the ponderously padded fat women who ride the ferry from Messina to Reggio Calabria all come back thin.

Under the voluminous garments
they carry 50 pounds or more of smuggled salt in muslin bags.

They can buy salt in the community region of Sicily for as little as two cents a pound.
In Reggio Calabria, where salt is a state-fixed government monopoly, it sells for six cents a pound.

At congress

2,000 women and five lone men

Melbourne, Apr. 18.
Melbourne's huge exhibition building looked like a female version of the United Nations today as more than 2,000 women from 46 countries met for the opening of a Nursing Congress.

The quadrennial Congress of the International Council of Nurses, being held in Australia for the first time, was opened by the Administrator of the Commonwealth, Sir Dallas
Brooke.

And, prominent among the almost exclusively female group were only five male nurse delegates.

One of the men, 33-year-old Ganapakasam Sandansamy, from Madras, is one of India's 74 delegates to the congress.

"This is wonderful," he said.
"I've never seen so many women in one place in my life."

Mr Sandansamy has been in Melbourne for nine months studying at Melbourne hospitals under the Colombo Plan.

£16,000 man's rent offer is rejected

London, Apr. 18.
George Wright, the 64-year-old winner of a £16,000
pools prize who asked a council to put up his rent, got his answer the other day. It was NO.

Said George: "It doesn't seem fair. Why should poorer people subsidise me?"

He sat on the back-step of his new two-bedroom bungalow in Sheepfold Lane, Ruddington, and added:

"I can well afford to pay more for this delightful place and would like to. I want to practise what I have preached all the time I was a Labour member of the council."

ONLY 18s. 6d.

Rent of the bungalow: 18s. 6d. a week.

Mr Wright won the £16,000
two months ago, a fortnight after he moved into his new bungalow.

"Had my luck come sooner I wouldn't have dreamed of taking on council house," he said. "Now I am here I want to stay."

"If I was worth a million pounds my wife Mabel and I wouldn't want a nicer place.
But I think it is only fair that I should pay an economic rent."

RATES UP

Mr Wright's offer was considered by Basford Rural District Council housing committee. Its decision to reject it on the ground that the council does not operate a differential rents policy was approved by the full council.

At the meeting Mrs Jessie Hill, chairman of the Labour-controlled council, moved an increase of 1s. 6d. in the rates, bringing them up to 18s. in the £.

CROSSWORD

London (By Airmail).

Peter Burgoine's British newsletter

Don't tell the tourists— but Britain has changed

London (By Airmail).

In the tight little world of the English town, it may be imagined by those who have read our tourist literature, that nothing much ever breaks the sleepy harmony except the jangling of doorbells in bow-fronted antique shops and the murmuring of municipal greybeards at their parish pumpery in picturesque moot halls.

We dispel the idyll with regret. Don't tell a soul who is British-bound with dollars to spend, but it isn't like that.

There is an affluent hum in the High-street. Almost overnight and before your eyes, the fascinating spleen-laden patios of old-established family groceries are turning into sleek service places, all glass and chromium and boredom.

If the lights burn late in the council offices these evenings it is not because of the state of the workhouse or the drains.

It takes much to jolt the gloomily work-bound city clogger from his morning routine; and it is no small tribute to the seal of Spaceman Yumlur that in many a London office it was not "Good Morning" but "Havo you you'd better?"

Not were Londoners slow to grasp the essential point about this first stunning 89-mile space-flight round the world:
that if you took the 5.53 pm train from Victoria Station it would lead you in Eastbourne, 54 miles away, in exactly the same span of time.

As usual on these occasions, TV interviewers mingled with the crowds, seeking the opinion of one's local newspaper that such a municipal figure who, for sheer unchanging durability, will surely never let you down.

We refer, of course, to His Worship the Mayor, impressively robed and gowned, snapping ceremonial tapes and presenting prizes and making that same glowing little speech just as he always has.

Just as he always will, we thought until this week. But now a devastating broadside aimed rather unsportingly at the mayoral aplomb by a progressive group of modernists known as the Unicville State Group, compels us to think again.

In a pamphlet on local government, aimed at encouraging the discussion of liberal ideas, the Group dub His Worship no more than "a mere ignoramus" among the moderns, said Dr. G. E. Lucas, an anesthetist, in a lecture at the Royal Institute of Health in London the other day.

His cheering precept comes, moreover, in a handy-sized scientific pamphlet containing all the necessary factual data for convincing doubtful wives.

It seems that the most highly developed portions of the brain need a lot of oxygen. If life in the modern world cannot always provide it, sedative drugs and alcohol help by preventing the brain from using the stuff.

A whole new range of explications is thus opened up for use during those apologetic 2 a.m. confrontations after regimental reunions and cricket club dinners.

Apologise? Not any more.
You see, my dear, it's all on account of the very high (hiccup) oxygen demand of my cerebral hemispheres.

And how about this for a climax, when all else has failed: "Civilisation may have produced many drunkards, but it has also produced very few talented geniuses".

Many a £15-a-week welder, exchanging his overalls for his councillor's pin-striped, becomes in the evening a tycoon with millions to spend.

It is understandable that there is vast apathy in British local government. It is probably true that there are too many dull and pompous old men in council chambers; that the exacting, unpaid work offers no particular incentive to energetic youngsters who could give the community so much.

Mayors may well be exalted too often as a kind of reward for aldermanic long service, for a twelve-month stint which makes it quite hopeless to try to develop and carry through any kind of policy.

The mayor who got the vote of the Unicville State Group would be elected for much longer, and paid a living wage instead of an entertainment allowance: the kind of wage that would attract a really able professional man.

He would be something like a municipal prime minister, working with the council, but they must pay for them.

There's no business like Lena Horne

THE SIMPLE ART OF DICTION, PLUS THE MAGIC ART OF LENA HORNE

London.

TAKE a simple, domestic, prosaic word like butter. Now witness what Lena Horne does to it once nightly in cabaret when it crops up in one of her song lyrics.

She melts it slowly in her large, warm, generous mouth until it's soft and malleable.

She rolls it against her whiter-than-white teeth into a small, succulent ball.

Then she lobs it languidly among the audience where it explodes aphrodisiacally. Even the word butter.

So Miss Horne, as I've told her, makes her own strange and seductive contribution to the science of semantics. Not to mention sex appeal.

She does it, of course, without didactic intention.

"Semantics, what's that honey? I just sing the song. Sure I rehearse the hell out of it first. Especially the lyrics. Then just sing it my way."

Whatever she does to a song when it's transported by the Horne alchemy it never has that mystic ring of banality, and it's seldom quite the same again.

She can even take a song like "Surrey With the Fringe on Top," the Rodgers and Hammerstein tribute to a horse and buggy ride, and make it sound something like a sensual glide towards a boudoir.

A joke

But like Marilyn Monroe and the other professional projectors of sex, Miss Horne never makes the mistake of taking it too seriously.

She always thinks sex should be treated as something of a joke by performers who parade it in front of audiences. If they take it too self-consciously it becomes offensive."

The other night in London's Tales of the Town, where she is appearing for a season, I watched her entertain two of her fans, Princess Margaret and Tony Armstrong-Jones. Daringly but innocently.

The management may have been worried about one of her numbers but not Miss Horne.

It's a word-play joke in which she sings: "Evil spelled back-wards means Live."

Purringly she delivered all the lines—including one which says: "Tony spelled backwards means Why Not."

Hardly brilliant, but done in the Horne way it was provocative and amusing to everyone—especially Princess Margaret and Mr. Tony.

Afterwards in her dressing room Miss Horne, who ate some thing a few days ago which she didn't agree with her fine brown friend, said:

"I felt awful before the show. I was afraid I'd do something terrible out there. Like belch."

She did not. Though from her it could have sounded enticing and euphonious.

I have been watching her perform now in cabaret in New York, Las Vegas, and London for about 10 years.

Gradually, sometimes stealthily, sometimes she has slinked towards perfection.

She tackles the mike like a lady matador arrogantly subduing a bull's horn.

She uses the very minimum amount of movement. Yet she conveys enough subdued, honey-powered energy to fuel more than a few Roman orgiastic nights.

But she can switch to a dancel ballad and coax it to its full poignancy, before pouncing on another specialty song and whipping it to a full climax of uncontrolable, rehearsed passion.

I asked what she thought about when she was out there performing.

"Honey. I don't think about Schopenhauer as Gipsy Rose Lee once said she did when she was doing her strip tease.

"I think about the audience and how to win them.

I don't worry too much about my effect on the men."

Neat

"But I sometimes wonder if the women are eyeing Daddy."

Daddy is Lennox Hayton, her husband and musical director.

She never bores or embarrasses the audience by introducing him coyly, but he is always there leading the orchestra and reassuring her telepathically.

He is a small, neat man with a wisp of a beard and a seraphic smile. He is white.

"When we were first married we had to keep our marriage secret for three years because my parents didn't approve of men,"

"Funny, isn't it? Before that I was married to a Negro and they weren't too keen about him either."

"I used to carry around a fair-sized chip about racial discrimination."

"I was ready to fight for the rights of my people, although I didn't personally have too much of me."

"I felt awful before the show. I was afraid I'd do some-

"But I suppose on the way up enough happened to make me asked how I look so young. What am I supposed to look like now that I'm 43—a wreck? An old hag?"

"Did I ever tell you about the time the guy in a lunch counter in the South refused to serve me—and then asked for my autograph?"

"Still, that's a long time ago. I don't get het up about that kind of thing nowadays."

"Daddy's helped a lot. Nothing bugs him. He just doesn't understand colour prejudice and people worrying about getting older and fatter."

"You know, I'm always being asked how I look so young. What am I supposed to look like now that I'm 43—a wreck? An old hag?"

"One character even wrote that my secret was cucumbers. Still, I like them but I don't eat them all the time."

"If I've any secret at all it's that I'm happy now and relaxed. I've got most of what I want. Don't ask me what I make. In Las Vegas it's 30,000 dollars a week. Here it's less, of course."

"There's one thing I still want to do, and that's a good stage musical. I'm sorry I had to turn down 'Solomon and Sheba' by Robert Graves. He's a great writer and all that."

"The lyrics were poetical, but they just weren't right for me."

"Still, I can wait. I don't want to conquer the world and put it to right like I used to. I don't want to split in anybody's eye any more."

There are a few exceptions of course. Including Dr Verwoerd and his entire Cabinet."

A COMMUNIST China spokesman announced that their scientists are trying to produce test-tube babies and added this bold statement: "If children can be had without being conceived the work and labour of mothers need not be affected by childbirth."

"This is happy news for women. Is it?"

Punishment by car

punishment should be given to Eichmann.

One boy said he should be tortured. Another recommended imprisonment for life.

Finally, a young girl said: "I think they should just put him in a car and drive him all round and show him Israel."

Kitty grows up—but not quite!

SHE was just a pretty teenager, with a cute ponytail and a minimum of makeup, cheerful and carefree. That was Kitty Ting-Hao three years ago.

Today, her thick black mane is gone, replaced by a sleek coiffure. Kitty has matured into a glamorous long-legged, slim-figured movie star living in a swanky flat eight storeys up, overlooking the harbour.

She runs the bell of her home last week. Her face broke into a smile as she stepped back, opening the door.

The star, who rocketed to fame with her performance in MP & GI's best-drawing comedy drama, "The Greatest Civil War On Earth," sported a pair of woolen slacks with black and grey stripes, topped by a red-brown woolen vest over a black sweater.

A jazz tune was being played on a tape recorder in a big radio-console, standing side by side with a TV set.

On the opposite side, Robert Chung, head of MP & GI, was on a blue settee, fidgeting with his camera.

Mandarin

Beyond a room-divider stood a cozy little bar with stools for three.

Kitty sank into a big chair before a glass coffee table and in unselfconscious Mandarin told of how she landed in movieland:

"After being screen tested six times, I was picked from among 1,700 candidates by MP & GI in 1955. I was only 10 then. Six months of training and I went before the cameras."

She has since completed more than 20 pictures in a little over five years and a dozen or so records for Pathé.

Versatile and volatile, Kitty has played country-maiden, sophisticate, student, air-hostess, nurse, and even space girl. "I'm going to act a man in my next film, 'You Are Meant For Me,'" she glibly.

Who and what is the real Kitty? Bob Chung stopped flossing his teeth and replied on her behalf: "Ambitious . . . kind-hearted . . . naughty . . . and obedient only to her mother . . ."

Her naughtiness was not evident until Bob snatched down to change a gadget on his camera. Suddenly, Kitty came up from behind and snored him with a hold something like a judo manoeuvre, bringing him all around.

Probably that was what she had learned while training for an amateur role in the picture, "Beauty Parade," shown recently in town.

In the snapshot session that followed, Kitty posed on her cream-covered bed, on the grey chaise longue, before the dressing table and finally behind the bar.

What struck me most was the great ease with which she posed. Her pose could not have been better even with professional direction!

Born in Macao and brought up in China where her father was a high government official, Kitty had travelled by air through almost 70 per cent of China proper and a portion of Siam.

One interest carried over from her happy childhood is her collection of dolls.

Of the numerous dolls and figurines in her bedroom, a three-foot girl in evening gown sits permanently on her pillow, and a yellow Canadian monkey—a gift from her aunt in Canada—reclines snugly on her chaise longue.

As she talked, Dolly, her black-and-white poodle, barked in an effort to attract attention.

Loved by Kitty and loathed by her mother, Dolly often finds refuge in Kitty's room.

Although a driver herself, she has hired a chauffeur. "Driving demands so much concentration that I got a chauffeur to take the worry out of my mind."

Her second car is a Ford Galaxy. Its colour? Flaming red. "Like a fire engine," Bob Chung cracked.

Kitty's ambition furthered her new maturity. "I want to make more dramatic films. And no Hollywood for me. I'm all for the Mandarin screen."

On seeing my mother, Dolly hides under my bed. No matter how hot and stilling, she remains inside until mother is gone," said Kitty who has trained Dolly in Cantonese.

Kitty has talent for design. She had wall of her boudoir knocked open and installed with a sweeping window pane over her headboard and covered it with glass.

On walking up in the morning, she can peer out to see the rising sun.

HERMIT IN ANTARCTICA

Mother of man who wanted solitude, diesTorquay, Apr. 18.
Mrs Florence Marion Carse, 78, died here unbeknown to her 47-year-old son Duncan, who is spending 18 months alone in South Georgia, Antarctica, out of contact with the outside world.

Before he left on his expedition last September, Mr Carse refused his mother's offer of a radio transmitter to keep him in touch with civilization. His mother, who died in hospital, said then: "I hate his desire for solitude. It seems to me so unnecessary to go absolutely without any means of contacting anybody, whatever happens."

Due back

A Royal Navy spokesman said at Plymouth that the naval vessel Owen, which landed Mr Carse and his eight tons of equipment, was due back in Britain on May 31.

Mr Carse sailed from England last September for the island, to which he has already led three survey teams in the last ten years.

At a press conference before he left, Mr Carse—well known to millions of Britons as "Dick Loomees."

DUNCAN CARSE
alias 'Dick' Barton

He rented part of South Georgia from the British Government.

Nearest camp

Mr Carse was "determined" to avoid other people because he said he was interested in the problem of living alone.

His nearest neighbours were said to be at a whaling station 20 miles from where he planned to set up camp.

His mother, daughter of a clergyman and widow of an artist, Arthur Duncan Carse, lived at Torquay.—China Mail Special.

Woman wins her claim against British airlineLondon, Apr. 18.
A widow suing Eagle Aviation, over the death of her radio officer husband in a crash stayed her action in the London High Court yesterday on agreed terms.

Full details were not disclosed in court.

Counsel for the widow, Mrs Jean Robertson, aged 32, told the judge that of £4,075 paid into court by the airline £2,000 would be divided equally between her two sons and that Mr Robertson's parents would get a total of £500. The widow would have the balance of £1,575.

Airline counsel said that in addition to a further sum paid by Eagle Aviation to Mrs Robertson she would also receive £3,500 insurance in respect of her husband's death.

Mrs Robertson claimed the blame for the death of her husband, Alexander Robertson, aged 31, in a crash at Blackbushe airport, near London four years ago—when 34 people died — lay with the pilot of the plane "who failed to carry out his duties with the skill and care he ought to have used."

She also claimed the airline was responsible "for failing to instruct and test the pilot properly."

NO FRILLS ON THESE SPRING BONNETS

—from Jane Rogers
in London

THERE won't be many sonnets written about this year's Easter bonnets. These birds' nest toques with chicks in them, picture hats picked with an eye on the Easter Parade are conspicuous in their absence this season, so is another line that turns up each spring as regularly as the cuckoo—the pert schoolgirl boater.

In their place two stark, difficult to wear but madly intriguing hat shapes have emerged: The coal-heaver's helmet and the sombrero.

The coal-heaver's helmet has a brim that is non-existent in shade that will give a pearly, honey-coloured tint to blonde hair, and eliminate any trace of brassiness if the hair has been bleached.

These new high-fashion tints have the colour effect of shot velvet, and can be used with fascinating results on all types of hair. They are soft and natural looking, and very flattering to the complexion since they don't have the flattening effect of an all-one-colour tint.

The woman with hair that is franky mot-a-coloured will find a pearlized tint is a wonderful colour booster, as it will give her hair the effect of colour depth, and also highlights, making it look more lively.

For the beach

The sombrero, on the other hand, is like a plain boater with the brim turned back. It can be immensely flattering if you look good with a hat perched on the back of your head.

Like the coal-heaver's helmet, it looks smartest with a minimum of hair showing, but it can be worn in a pretty-pretty way if you prefer, with a few curls straggling out underneath.

I am glad to see that the beret is back, even though it is barely recognizable in its new puffed-up version. It looks rather like a space-man's helmet, is made from shiny woven straw banded round with velvet.

To partner simpler, starker hats come simpler hairstyles. And if you are one of the hair-rather-than-hat brigade there is a whole new range of colour tints to highlight and enhance a well-cultured head. They are particularly effective on the artichoke hairstyle with its soft waves and absence ofcurls.

The pearly look

We have had the pearlised look in jewellery and leather so I suppose it was time the trend came to a head, and these new tints from France have that pearlised look too.

JACOBY on BRIDGE

HERE is another game contract that almost anyone would reach. South has 16 high card points and a proper no-trump opening and North's 11 points clearly warrant a raise to game.

Normally 27 points will produce nine tricks, but this time neither North nor South holds a spade stopper, and because East and West also have the nee of clubs, South is faced with the prospect of at least five losing tricks.

Fortunately for him, West opens a heart, so South sees one chance for his contract. He must sneak one club through and then run off his top tricks in the red suits.

South succeeded in making his contract. He went up with dummy's ace of hearts and led the ten of clubs.

East thought about putting the ace right up, but he wasn't looking at any cards except his own and dummy's, so East played low. Now South put up the queen of clubs. It didn't matter what he did at this point, but it might have mattered if West held the club ace.

In that case the queen of clubs play was calculated to indicate that East held the club jack and to conceal South's weakness in spades.

Rupert and the Paper-fall-30

Rupert is now as anxious as his pal. "I've no idea where we are," he moans. "Everything looks quite different. Anyway, there's the building. Let me see, there's the door. Then he knocks again. There is no answer, nor can I hear anyone moving inside. All at once Edward has an idea. 'Don't you remember,' he exclaims, 'when we came here couldn't see the building until we had turned round three times. That made everything seem different. Shall we spin round now?'"

What do you do?

A Pass. Obviously, your partner is not proud of his heart suit, nor does he think much of his spades. You should now be content with game only.

INTERNATIONAL HOCKEY

Portugal overwhelms Commonwealth, will play Malaya in final

By NUMPERE

In a semi-final of the Men's Hockey International Knock-out tournament at King's Park last evening, Portugal overwhelmed Commonwealth and won by 7-1.

The previous evening in the other semi-final, Malaya beat Ireland by 3-1 but Ireland were already weakened by the absence of skipper Chamberlain and mid-fielders Gardner and Lendells.

The final will be played on Sunday at Recreio, bully off 4 pm and will be followed by the presentation of all the season's trophies for men's hockey.

As a curtain-raiser to the international final, a match is being staged between the HKKA Cornell and the Colony's Cornfrees. This should prove very interesting.

In last evening's semi-final the Portuguese team, consisting of seven from Macaens and four from Recreio, were much too strong for the Commonwealth side.

Commonwealth's team were all from KCC with the exception of RAF's right-winger Stevenson, but five of them were from the KCC 'B' side.

The slippery conditions of the ground was all against good hockey but some delightful short passing movements were seen from Portugal. In fact, at times they seemed to be just playing with the opposition. Commonwealth never gave up and were trying hard right up to the final whistle but they were never really in the game with a chance.

DRIZZLING RAIN

It started off in drizzling rain with Portugal straight into the attack, through their left-wing pair of L. Guterres and So-Silva but the movement ended with So-Silva running the ball over the goal line.

Portugal maintained the pressure and took the lead in the seventh minute when Sequira sent a pass through for Guterres to cut into the circle and flick the ball into the corner of the goal past the advancing Soares.

Shortly afterwards Colaco went away on the right wing and centred for Sa-Silva to hit the post with a terrific shot. Sa-Silva had another go but shot straight at Soares' pads and in the ensuing muddle Portugal were awarded a short-corner.

From this they made it 2-0 when Sequira flicked Sa-Silva's corner to Cunha who scored from close range with a hard shot.

For the next few minutes Commonwealth came into the picture. A long clearance from Bell sent Stevenson away on the wing and he passed inside to Guiford but before he could shoot Portugal's goalkeeper Z. Sequira obstructed to concede a short-corner.

SAVED

From this Sequira saved Stevenson's shot and Volano cleared but Silves intervened and passed to Guiford who shot past the Portuguese goalkeeper. However Volano parried the shot brilliantly on the reverse stick although he sent the ball behind for a corner in so doing.

The corner was lifted by Rosa but play was allowed to proceed and after Soares' shot had been saved, Rosa cut in to score and reduce the arrears to 1-1 the 17th minute.

Two minutes later Commonwealth went close again. Shroff went through the centre and passed to the left wing but there was no one there and Shroff chased to Simes but his reverse stick shot was wide of the goal. Shroff had another chance shortly afterwards but after beating the defence and with only the goalkeeper left he shot wide.

PRESSURE

Portugal now applied the pressure again and added two more goals in four minutes. The first one came following a free-kick awarded against Tait for obstruction which Costa sent to right-winger Coloco who centred for Cunha to crack the ball past Soares.

Coloco and Cunha had a hand in the next one too when from a roll in Coloco passed to Cunha who slipped the ball through to Sequira. Sequira's shot was saved by Soares but So-Silva, following up, scored with a beautiful reverse stick shot.

Portugal were all over Commonwealth now and indulged in some very fancy stickwork and almost scored again just before the interval when Sequira hit the post but the score remained unchanged at 4-1 for

2, HAPPY VALLEY . . . . 1

KWOK MOON-WAH ORDERED OFF AFTER ASTONISHING GOALMOUTH FREE-FOR-ALL

By I. M. MACTAIVISH

Drama piled on drama as this pulsating — often thrilling — battle surged on its turbulent course to a result that brought great joy to the South China camp and unhappy bitterness to once Happy Valley.

As the players trudged wearily in at the end the scoreboard read . . . South China 2, Happy Valley 1 . . . and that was just about a fair reflection on the game. After 200 minutes of relentless play South China were in the Shield Final.

Portugal when the whistle went to end the first period of play.

With the poor weather conditions the teams dispersed with the interval and changed straight over and Portugal carried on where they left off, attacking strongly. In fact their goalkeeper Sequira did not see the ball for the next 10 minutes.

By that time they had added three more goals. Firstly in the 11th minute, Sequira was tricked inside the circle and from the resultant short-corner Soares crossed for Valente. So-Silva crossed to the net with a crashing shot.

The next came from a movement in which both the wingers took part. Coloco crossed to Soares whose shot was saved by Soares but L. Sequira gained possession and although his reverse stick shot was a very tame one Soares and Neto lost their footing on the slippery ground and could not stop it entering the net.

This was a he-man's game from the start. Hard knocks and grinding tackling were the order of the day. Often they were exchanged in sporting fashion; sometimes however they were not.

Happy Valley faded very badly after the interval. They had more than fair share of goal-scoring chances but their forwards had a poor day and it was particularly surprising to find Leung Wu-hung so ineffectual against South China's reserve fullback Lo Kwai-sung. Kwok Moon-wah, who finished the day in dark clothes, was well looked after by So Man-po and not once in the entire game did he look like a five star leader.

DEFENSIVE LAPSES

Happy Valley can ask themselves many questions after this defeat. Their post-mortem would surely produce interesting findings for there is not the slightest doubt that they lost because of two inexplicable defensive lapses involving experienced players whose nerves should not have become frayed in the heat of a vital tussle like this.

The side never quite displayed the life and spirit so obvious in their first match with the champions. While they were still ahead they seemed confident enough. Later they conceded defeat much too easily.

Star goalkeeper Wong Shiu-wu did many brilliant things yet he lost two disastrous goals which he should have saved. Lok Tak-hing did not look fully fit and Chau Charn-lam has often played better. The big disappointment in the side was the failure of their powerfull full-back line to dominate for long when they were on top. Lively Leung Kwai-hung, who was brought in for Li Chin-kau at left half, wandered far too much to be a real success.

Maybe the more probing fingers of suspicion would land on Lau Tim and Wong Man-wai. Neither of them played as they can and too often they were beaten for possession.

Apart from anything else Wong Man-wai spoilt much of his best work by indulging in his own particular brand of the unsavoury. One incident in the second half, when he stuck a very dangerous knee under Kwok Moon-wah, was quite uncalled for and the referee's 'word in his ear' was less than the effort deserved. Incidentally, during the game Leung Kwai-hung and Lee Tak-wai were both booked.

Of the other Happy Valley players only Tee Ben-juen really got into his stride. Werner Au Pang-nan missed several good chances and Chu Wing-keung tried to be 'too old fashioned' for words. The act crowd and the fans who cheerfully braved the unpleasant weather, certainly got a substantial return for their money if only in suspense and excitement.

The match produced some bursts of fine football, crop of astonishing human errors, some excellent and some not so good decisions, a fantastic foot-feast in the South China goalmouth when both flanks, blows crashed, bodies clashed and Colony centre-forward Kwok Moon-wah got a fully justified premature ticket to the shower room.

This was a he-man's game from the start. Hard knocks and grinding tackling were the order of the day. Often they were exchanged in sporting fashion; sometimes however they were not.

Happy Valley faded very badly after the interval. They had more than fair share of goal-scoring chances but their forwards had a poor day and it was particularly surprising to find Leung Wu-hung so ineffectual against South China's reserve fullback Lo Kwai-sung. Kwok Moon-wah, who finished the day in dark clothes, was well looked after by So Man-po and not once in the entire game did he look like a five star leader.

DEFENSIVE LAPSES

Happy Valley can ask themselves many questions after this defeat. Their post-mortem would surely produce interesting findings for there is not the slightest doubt that they lost because of two inexplicable defensive lapses involving experienced players whose nerves should not have become frayed in the heat of a vital tussle like this.

The side never quite displayed the life and spirit so obvious in their first match with the champions. While they were still ahead they seemed confident enough. Later they conceded defeat much too easily.

Star goalkeeper Wong Shiu-wu did many brilliant things yet he lost two disastrous goals which he should have saved. Lok Tak-hing did not look fully fit and Chau Charn-lam has often played better. The big disappointment in the side was the failure of their powerfull full-back line to dominate for long when they were on top. Lively Leung Kwai-hung, who was brought in for Li Chin-kau at left half, wandered far too much to be a real success.

Maybe the more probing fingers of suspicion would land on Lau Tim and Wong Man-wai. Neither of them played as they can and too often they were beaten for possession.

Apart from anything else Wong Man-wai spoilt much of his best work by indulging in his own particular brand of the unsavoury. ## BROWN KEEPS TITLE AFTER TREMENDOUS BATTLE

Joe Brown (right) and Dave Charnley — 15 tough rounds.

London, Apr. 18.

Joe Brown, the American Negro retained his world lightweight title before a capacity 18,000 crowd at Earls Court stadium here tonight, but he was given a tremendous battle by Dave Charnley, the British, British Empire and European champion, who took him the full distance.

Only three fighters have ever gone the distance with the Louisiana spider-legged maestro, who was defending his title for the tenth time.

Charnley not only went the distance but had the American world champion fighting hard to avoid a knock-out in the closing stages.

The huge crowd disappointed that Charnley, magnificent rally over the last four rounds had not, but his American world champion fighting hard to avoid a knock-out in the closing stages.

These two incidents apart I thought the official triumphant of Messrs. Petrie, Pratlett and Marsden-White did a very good job indeed.

All three goals could be directly attributed to errors by the two goalkeepers.

In the 32nd minute Lau Kin-cheung carelessly overcarried the ball beyond the 18 yard line when he had plenty of room to clear. The ball was placed a foot from the edge of the penalty area. Three Happy Valley players stood by it. Wong Chiung-keung sold a deceptive dummy to the two for Leung Kwai-hung. His distribution was so inconsistent that it frequently led to trouble for the ball.

South China's wing halves have often played better. On the run by the Happy Valley players stood by it. Wong Chiung-keung sold a deceptive dummy to the two for Leung Kwai-hung. His distribution was so inconsistent that it frequently led to trouble for the ball.

Any hopes that this time we would see the famous South China forward line hit the high-spots were not realised and much of the attacking was done by means of swift individual thrusts rather than by intricate moves built up in their traditional style. Veteran full-back Wong Shiu-wu could only push it out, Mok Chun-wah raced in and fired a good effort into the net close to the post.

The winning goal came in the 73rd minute. The Happy Valley goalkeeper failed to intercept a fast pass from the right as Lee Tak-wai charged in. The ball ran loose and Mok Chun-wah had the easiest possible task in driving home a shot worth many thousands of dollars to his club.

There was plenty of excitement in a tense and often exciting period but South China held out and brought the elusive double within their grasp.

VERDICT. — A REAL HELTER SKELTER 'CUP-TE' WITH A RESULT THAT WAS JUST ABOUT RIGHT IN THE END. HAPPY VALLEY HAVE NO COMPLAINTS: THEY CONTRIBUTED MUCH TO THEIR OWN DEFEAT . . . . TOO MUCH.

Round five was the turning point. Suddenly Brown unleashed a tremendous right

KING Fund of Egypt died yesterday. On Monday his condition changed for the worse after earlier showing a sudden improvement. He insisted on seeing the premier and a number of court officials. The newspapers were read to the King and he discussed affairs with those present. He died a few hours later. The Crown Prince Farouk, who is in England, is returning to Egypt immediately.

He was later proclaimed King on his return to Cairo.

FROM the SCMP's 25 years ago column: "A telegram received in Hong Kong yesterday stated that the Pacific Mail steamer Asia had gone ashore north of Formosa, that she was a total loss, but that all the passengers and mails were safe."

"The news created quite a furor here, for it was only on Friday last that the good ship Asia steamed out of Hong Kong, as she had done hundreds of times before, under the happiest of conditions."

"Popular as she had been at all times, she had a full complement of homeward bound passengers on board and a large and valuable cargo of the products of China and the Philippines in her holds destined for the great market of the United States."

"The passengers include the wife and daughter of Dr Clark, the Medical Officer of Health, and Mr F. A. Farmer."

"The Asia, known in her old White Star Line days as the Doric, is a sister ship of the s.s. Persia (formerly the Coptic) and was built in 1883 by the world renowned firm of Harland and Wolff of Belfast."

"She was a four-masted steel ship with three decks and had a gross tonnage of 4,680."

Rosemary's whirlwind shopping tour of HK

EUROPEAN PUBLISHER FINED $600

For assaulting a police officer and behaving in a disorderly manner in the report room of the Eastern Police Station, European publisher was fined a total of $600 with an alternative of 37 days imprisonment by K. A. S. Phillips at Causeway Bay Court this morning.

John Doyle, residing at 9 Tal Hang-road, third floor, pleaded guilty.

Inspector Y. C. Lam told the court that following a complaint from the Dollar Bar, Henley-road, Doyle was arrested to the Eastern Police Station by two police constables early this morning.

Inpector Lam said, in the report, Doyle became abusive. He used bad language and eventually tried to strike the duty officer, Inspector N. E. Humphrey, with his fist.

Doyle then picked up a green jersey belonging to a Chinese woman and tried to hit Inspector Humphrey across the face.

Inpector Humphrey's pen was knocked over and the ink splashed on the desk, added Inspector Lam.

Doyle said he had been in the Colony for 13 months.

Petite, blonde Canadian travel contest winner Miss Rosemary Palin flew into Hong Kong yesterday for a two-hour stopover, and in spite of the bad weather was able to complete a 45-minute whirlwind shopping tour of Kowloon.

Miss Palin, on an eight-day round-the-world tour aimed at enticing Canadians to travel abroad, arrived here by Swissair from Bangkok and two hours later left for a one-day visit to Tokyo before returning to Canada.

From some 60-70 entries, Miss Palin's was considered the best, and she was awarded the trip from Montreal through Europe, the Middle East, Far East and back to Canada.

Now nearing the end of her tour, she said in Hong Kong yesterday, "It's really been a terrible, wonderful rush. Naturally I would have liked to stopover in the various cities longer, but it was impossible with the schedule I have to keep."

DOLLS, COOLIE HAT

"I have to get back to Toronto for the opening of the Travelage Holiday Fair tomorrow for the Press Preview. The actual Fair opens to the public on Friday," she added.

After clearing customs and meeting the Press of Hong Kong at the airport, Miss Palin found she had an hour to spare before her flight for Tokyo, so a quick shopping tour was arranged.

Her first purchases were Hong Kong-made cloth dolls of various Chinese characters, and with these safely tucked under her arm her tour of the shops continued.

Just before it was time to go, she spied a bamboo coolie hat on the wall of a shop and after some brief bargaining emerged victorious with the hat balanced precariously upon her head.

"You know it has always been an ambition of mine to shop in Hong Kong, and in one hour I have seen so much that it has been one of the most rewarding stops of my trip, in spite of the brief stay and the bad weather," she added before leaving for Tokyo.

JAILED FOR OFFENCE AGAINST YOUNG GIRL

A 35-year-old man was jailed for three months by Mr Derek Cons at Central Court this morning for having carnal knowledge of a 13-year-old girl.

The man, Li Sun-kwok, salesman, of 132 Second-street, fourth floor, pleaded guilty at a previous hearing last Wednesday and was remanded until this morning for a probation officer's report.

Li was said to have committed the offence on several occasions between December last and April this year.

He had earlier told the Magistrate that he would marry the girl "whether Your Worship sends me to jail or imposes a fine on me."

Defendant admitted the theft to the police. He added that after stealing the rings, he went to Macao where he sold the stolen property. He returned to the Colony when he had spent all the money.

Defendant had three previous convictions including a similar offence.

day and was remanded until this morning for a probation officer's report.

It is petty of us to deny Soviet Russia her claim to distinction by trying to belittle the exceptional work of her spaceman who deserves the honours showered upon him, for it takes courage to offer oneself as a human guinea pig for the glory of one's country.

The present haggling over who is greater than whom reminds one of the song of the people of Israel when they sang their psalm in honour of David after his slaying of the giant Goliath and his success over the Philistines by recalling that though Saul had slain his thousand, David had slain his ten thousand.

Why must we always grudge praise to others when the victors are not of our own country? Is it because of jealousy or narrow-mindedness?

However, all these wonderful achievements are nothing when compared to the yet unattained objective of finding a cure for cancer or other hitherto incurable diseases, and when such a cure has been found and the first person to do so belongs to some country whose political ideologies are distasteful to us, let me have sufficient grace to accord the benefactor of mankind by tendering him the just gratitude of the world instead of trying to make inviolable comparisons that seem to us so uncharitable and unworthy of ourselves.
